Born 1985, Camile Sproesser is a Brazilian artist whose practice consists of creating images that trigger possible myths of the collective unconscious; stories from the past that no one heard of but are somehow known, zoomorphic beings embedded in stars, phallus and vaginas as symbolic treasures and so on.

Camile uses vibrant colors and likes to play with oil painting in different materials such as jute, burlap and linen to reveal her poetic universe that is mysterious, playful and fearless. In drawing references from a vast literary and mythological source, Sproesser blends stories from the ancient past with a feminist gaze in the present. These conjured images do not pass judgements on the subject they address, preferring instead to reverberate in humour and instinct allowing the viewer to unravel all possible narratives.

The artist had her first solo show in Europe with Open Forum at Peres Projects in Berlin in September 2024. She has had solo shows with Projeto Vênus in São Paulo (2023, 2022, 2021) and Mendes Wood DM in São Paulo (2019). Sproesser lives and works in different places such as Northern Catskills in New York, São Paulo, Brazil and Brittany, France.
